

Death of Americans on the Line Angering Capture of Relations Between Germany

RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT MAY BE REFUSED TO MOSCOW, IS REPORT

Invading Germans and Austrians Are Now Threatening Last of Outlying Fortresses Protecting Petrograd

LANDING OF TROOPS AT GALLIOLI NOT SUCCESSFUL

London Admits Turks Were Able to Rush Up Army in Time to Prevent Allies From Advancing

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, Aug. 20.—As the Austrians and Germans press on to the last of the outlying fortresses protecting the capital, Petrograd is discussing the advisability of removing the government to the eastward, where Moscow is now definitely in the hands of the Germans. The flanking movement of Field Marshal von Mackensen grows more threatening hourly, and it would not be surprising if Grand Duke Nicholas should abandon all efforts to form a new line with Best-Litovsk as the pivot.

From Best-Litovsk to Osovetz which seems to be withstanding the assaults of the heavy German guns better than any other fortress, the German continues favorable to the invaders. Riga has again become the center of a struggle on land and sea. Petrograd states that the Russian warships protecting the gulf of Riga were compelled to draw in closer, owing to the superiority of the German squadron.

DEEP BATTLE MEN. The landing of British troops at Suva Bay, Gallipoli peninsula, is regarded here as a partial disappointment. The Turks had concentrated their forces in the Anzac line, and the British troops were not able to make a landing in the face of the Turkish fire.

Chamber and Bankers Laud Civic Harmony

Resolutions Adopted by Clearing House and Chamber In House Ragsdale's Plea for Old-Time Atlanta Spirit

The Atlanta chamber of commerce is the latest of many organizations to become infected with the "one together" spirit suggested by Mayor Pro Tem I. N. Ragsdale.

The board of directors, at a meeting Thursday, passed resolutions endorsing Mr. Ragsdale's plea for harmony and pledging the hearty co-operation of the chamber of commerce.

BULGARIA IS READY TO ATTACK TURKEY, SAYS SOFIA REPORT

Sofia Correspondent Says the Allies Have Given Back Lost Macedonia and Promised More to Win Nation

Now to PLACATE TWO OTHER BALKAN STATES

Entente Powers Are Bending Efforts to Repay Serbia and Offer Greece Compensation to Enter

(By Associated Press.) SOFIA, Aug. 19.—(Via Paris, Aug. 20.) The entente powers, according to a positive statement made by the Sofia correspondent of the Giornale d'Italia, have offered to Bulgaria that part of Macedonia given to her by the Serbo-Bulgarian treaty of 1913, with the right of immediate occupation. The controversy over the part of Macedonia contested by Serbia and the cause of the second Balkan war will be settled after the present war ends.

Proportionate compensation is to be given to Serbia, including the city of Kavalas with the districts of Kavalas and Sereva, with the right of immediate occupation.

Bulgaria on her side renounces forever pretensions to Saloniki, Vidina and Uskub. She promises also to declare war immediately upon Turkey aided by funds of the four allies. Bulgaria, the correspondent declares, will receive further territorial concessions in Turkey.

It is believed that Serbia and Greece will give way under pressure by the entente powers, but negotiations will be lengthened by the reluctance of the king of Greece to consent to any cession of territory.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR BIG BRITISH LOAN CONTINUE

While Progress Is Unknown Reports Boost Foreign Exchange Market

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Negotiations looking to the financing here of a $100,000,000 loan to the British government for American supplies bought abroad, continued today, unaffected, it was said, by the simultaneous report that no official announcement concerning their progress was made, but the foreign exchange market took on a stronger tone.

Material was quoted at three quarters of a cent higher than its closing quotation of 4.67 1/4 yesterday.

THIS DOCTOR DID MOST FOR HUMANITY IN 1914

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Trustees of the American Medical Gold Medal Award have unanimously selected Surgeon General Rupert Blue, of the public health service, as the American physician who did most for humanity in the domain of medicine during 1914.

Dr. Blue was awarded the medal for his work in national health and sanitation.

Georgia Alone To Punish Mob, Says Governor

This State Will Bring Lynchers to Justice, Says Governor Harris, Deprecating Outside Offers of Reward

Gov. Nat. R. Harris on Friday expressed his regret because of the disposition of Georgia to interfere and give advice in handling the situation precipitated by the lynching of Joe Frank. His opinion is that these things will be handled by the people of Georgia and will do more harm than good.

The lynching was a crime against the civilization of our state and a blot upon Georgia's fair name that cannot be erased, said the governor. "None of us approve of mob violence on Lynch law, and all of us regret what has happened. I have and will continue to exert every power at my command to bring the members of the mob to justice."

"But if the members of the mob are brought to justice it will be through the courageous efforts of Georgia officials and courts, supported by the sentiment of the citizens of the state, and not through the newspaper editorials and resolutions of indignation and offers of rewards coming from other states."

"I am afraid these things will only serve to aggravate a situation that already is deeply humiliating to our people, and if they continue will eventuate in a great deal more harm than good by defeating the efforts of the state to apprehend the guilty parties."

Among the many telegrams, letters, newspaper editorials, cartoons, etc., which have been received by the governor's office since the lynching, was one of a very different tone that arrived Friday, a telegram signed by Joseph Morton and sent from New York.

This telegram reads as follows: "Dispatches in the newspapers indicate that outsiders are again proposing to meddle with the internal affairs of the state of Georgia. I marvel that your people have been patient. I protest against this persistence of provocation. Every right thinking man must recognize the fact that justice and order are outsiders in this hour of our perplexity. I trust the state would be glad to have outsiders in this hour of our perplexity."

LESS COTTON PLANTED. "Look ahead into 1916. Usually each year the farmers of the south purchase from 5 to 10 per cent new mules to replace those that die, and up to which have died. Last year, and up to the middle of this year, instead of buying new mules, the farmers of the south were forced to use the old mules, and the conditions would depress the price of cotton still further, sold from 5 to 10 per cent below their market for war purposes."

In addition, discouraged over the conditions which seemed to crystallize at the first shock of the war, many farmers abandoned cotton raising altogether and turned to other lines of work. The farmers who were left to raise cotton were forced to finance the situation, and the price of cotton was raised to a greater extent than ever.

"Still another point in the last twelve months the farmers who were forced to raise cotton have done so. This means that the visible supply of cotton in the hands of men able to export it to the world is less than it was a year ago. The price of cotton can be obtained."

At the midst of all this we have the federal reserve banks prepared to make any reasonable loan on cotton collateral. The federal reserve banks of the south Joseph A. McCord, of the federal reserve bank of New Orleans, is circular to the member banks of the Sixth district calling attention to the assuredly reduced supply of cotton, and enumerating the conditions under which paper secured by warehouse receipts for cotton will be rediscounted. And the terms are sensible, businesslike and so reasonable that nine-tenths of the farmers can get their pleasure regarding the sale of their cotton.

"The foregoing facts pave the way to a somewhat better understanding of the crop of 1916. With farmers owning 95 per cent of the mules, and with the price of new farms abandoned as far as cotton is concerned, the crop for next year will not be over 12,000,000 bales.

"From this year we will carry forward about 1,000,000 bales, which will mean a total supply of 13,000,000 bales. This would mean a shortage of 1,000,000 bales as compared to the world's needs. It is conservative, say that the total crop and the amount held over from 1915 will not be a pound of cotton in reserve, and in my figures I take into account the loss of 1,000,000 bales."

HOKE SMITH'S OBJECT. "Now in order to force the farmer to raise more cotton, the federal reserve abundance the price must be advanced. That is simple logic. Therefore for 1917, in the spring of 1917, cotton should be quoted at fifteen cents a pound. The federal reserve banks are interested in using 50,000 bales of cotton a year, I presume you wonder that I am not a bear. Well, I am not, because the situation justifies only the belief that the cotton has reached its low level for many years."

Asked what he thought of Senator Joseph Smith's activities might be found a situation replete with subtleties.

"An accident," said Mr. Callaway, "Senator Smith neither hopes for (Continued on Last Page, Column 5.)"

Press Urges Reprisal With the Germans

American Newspapers Commenting on Sinking of Arabic Declare That It Is Up to U. S. to Sever Relations

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Officials here today read without comment extracts from various editorials printed in the newspapers throughout the United States and collected through the Associated Press.

While there were a few dissenting editorials, the majority declared that in view of the last note to Germany there was no room for doubt as to the United States' sever diplomatic relations with Germany.

"The worst we can look for," says one paper, "is the severance of diplomatic relations. We should recall Ambassador Gerard and give Count von Bernstorff his papers."

CHICAGO JOURNAL. The sinking of the Arabic is exactly the same sort of piracy as the sinking of the Lusitania. From now on, the United States must be prepared to take its share of the responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania.

KANSAS CITY (MO.) STAR. The sinking of the Arabic is a deliberate and unprovoked act of piracy. The United States must take its share of the responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania.

BALTIMORE NEWS. If there is nothing for us but to recall our ambassador from Berlin, then Germany must protect herself.

DETROIT JOURNAL. The situation is grave indeed. With self-control, but with a firm hand, the United States must take its share of the responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania.

COLUMBIA S. C. RECORD. A mild criticism of the United States' action in the sinking of the Arabic would be taken as a sign of weakness. The United States must take its share of the responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania.

CHATTANOOGA NEWS. At the present writing the case seems to have become very ugly indeed. Certainly will accentuate feeling in this country and make the diplomatic relations of the United States with Germany a delicate matter.

KNOXVILLE SENTINEL. Without regard to whether American lives are at stake, the sinking of the Arabic is a deliberate and unprovoked act of piracy. The United States must take its share of the responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania.

COOPER LEADS SPEED MERCHANTS AT ELGIN

Make 76.42 Miles Per Hour for First Fifty Miles—Anderson Second

(By Associated Press.) ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 20.—Ralph De Palma was the favorite in today's 20-mile automobile road race for the Chicago Automobile club trophy and a purse of $2,000, until he was forced to stop because of a broken axle.

Cooper, who led at fifty miles, averaged 74.42 miles an hour. Anderson was a close second and Almy third. Henderson, O'Donnell and Offield were about 4,000 miles behind.

At 100 miles Cooper led Anderson by nine seconds. His speed was 76.75 miles an hour. De Palma was second, and Henderson third.

Only Four More Selling Days--- Saturday--Monday--Tuesday--Wednesday

We will close this Store on Wednesday, the 25th of August, and remain closed until about the 5th of September, when our new store will be opened at 60 Peachtree—directly opposite our present location.

We would like to open the new store with a brand-new outfit from top to bottom. So eager are we to do this that we are willing to sacrifice profits entirely, and in many cases sell the goods at an actual loss, that we may then be able to state that our entire stock is ABSOLUTELY NEW.

You will find any number of special articles at special prices not mentioned here that are apt to appeal to your taste and your sense of economy, so it would not be amiss to walk through the store and view the entire stock before it is all sold.

A Good Time to Buy a Fine Overcoat

We carried over from last season quite a bunch of medium and fine overcoats. The sizes are broken and lines are incomplete, but in the aggregate all sizes are here and also various models. These coats ranged in price from $25 to $40, and to close them out before the new season begins we have placed them on sale at very attractive prices—in many cases less than half their actual worth. Really a good time to buy a fine overcoat very cheap.

Letter From Frank Reaches Brooklyn After His Death

Tells Aged Mother of His First Meal With Wife Since He Was Attacked by Prisoner

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Frank's mother today made public the last letter she received from her son. The letter reached Brooklyn yesterday having been written on the night of August 15, the evening before Frank was lynched. He wrote:

"I am sitting up in a rocking chair as I write this. I am very much stronger. At dinner today I sat to table with my dear Lucille."

"I have been sitting in a chair for an hour or so each day for the past few days. I am gradually learning to walk after the long stay in bed."

Frank added that his wound was healing rapidly and he was able to move his head pretty well. He concluded: "Give my regards to all enquiring friends. With much love to you and all, in which Lucille joins me."

Mrs. Frank in her talk with reporters today, was asked if she forgave the men who lynched her son.

"Do not ask me whether I forgive the murderers," of my son," said Mrs. Frank. "Perhaps some day I will be able to answer that. Just now I can only quote Leo's favorite passage from the Scriptures. It was: 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.'"

"I might add, 'but they will some day.'"

Dr. Adler Declares Georgia Alone Should Seek Lynchers

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Prominent Christians and Jews met here today to discuss plans for aiding Georgia to apprehend the men who lynched Leo M. Frank.

Isadore M. Levy, member of the board of education, who is interested in the movement, said a temporary organization had been effected and within a few days a strong appeal probably would be made to Governor Harris.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, chairman of the American Jewish committee, said he declined to work with the committee and did not believe his committee would aid in the matter. He said he thought the hunt for Frank's slayers was a matter for Georgia authorities.

NEGRO MAIL CLERK IS HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

Big Collection of Stolen Articles Found in Home, Say Inspectors

In the office of Postoffice Inspector R. E. Barry at the federal building is a collection of stolen articles ranging from a Swiss watch to a side comb, which the inspectors found in the home of C. B. Florence, a negro mail clerk, who is under arrest.

Florence lives in Albany, and his run is on the Atlantic Coast Line between Albany and Thomasville. He admitted taking most of the goods, and inspectors said his operations had covered about 10 years.

His arrest at Albany followed his attempt to sell a box of cigars which the inspectors say he stole.

The total value of the goods taken by Florence is estimated at $700, and consists of articles taken from the parcel post. In the collection is a large lot of silverware, most of it engraved; three watches; a diamond ring; an assortment of silks and linen goods, some made up into extensive garments and others in bolts; a hand bag, and the like.

Inspectors say that Florence gave most of the women's clothes to his wife, who was said to be the best dressed woman in Albany's dark-skinned society. Among the body are several expensive evening dresses. Most of the goods will be returned to their owners.

Y. W. C. A. DELEGATES MEET HERE IN FALL

Plans have been made for the meeting of the southern conference of the Young Women's Christian association in Atlanta early in October, the exact date to be agreed upon later. Delegates from associations south of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi will be in attendance and will be entertained at the homes of the board of directors of the Atlanta branch.

Francis Joseph's Birthday.

On the world's stormy stage during the last three-quarters of a century many royal actors have made their entrances and exits, but one gray figure has lingered through all the changeable scenes—Francis Joseph, of Austria. Yesterday was the Emperor's eighty-fifth birthday; and what ghostly memories must have thronged upon him as the bells of Vienna rang celebration!

Sixty-seven years ago Francis Joseph, then a pale, slender lad just out of college, was summoned to his country's uncertain throne. The story goes that he received the tidings of his new dignity with the exclamation, "Oh, my youth! Thou art forever gone from me!" He found an empire of seventeen jarring States, and for two decades his reign was beset with internal strife and foreign dangers. "Yet in all this time," a historian says, "only two little principles slipped from his grasp."

As astute a ruler was Francis Joseph that even while tightening the lines of his own power he became known as the friend of Constitutional government and political reform. In 1867, realizing the inexhaustible fire of independence that burned in Hungary he authorized the establishment of a dual monarchy under which Hungary and Austria each managed its internal affairs but united on a single ministry for the direction of imperial matters such as finance and foreign relations. A writer in the World's Work quotes the old German emperor as once saying: "Francis Joseph has three ministers of the whole monarchy, eight of Austria, ten of Hungary and three of Croatia—in all twenty-four—yet when anything is to be done, he does it himself."

Besides the wars and revolutions through which he has passed, the Emperor's life has been shadowed by a train of family tragedies—the violent taking-off of his brother, Maximilian of Mexico, the mysterious death of his son Rudolph with the Baroness Maria Vetsera, the assassination of his wife, and that crowning tragedy which precipitated the present war, the assassination of his son, the Crown Prince Ferdinand. Broken with sorrow and bent with iron years, the gray emperor lingers on. Of him as of Lear,

"The wonder is he hath endured so long."

While rain was undoubtedly needed, there was no necessity for the weather man to overdo the thing.

Italy's Delay Explained.

Italy's long delay in entering the war has often been ascribed to a purpose to drive the shrewdest possible bargain. But in the light of later conditions and reports, it seems that her months of waiting were astir with prudent activity, not suspended in diplomatic hesitation. France and England apparently knew far in advance the drift and destination of events; for, France soon removed the guard she had thrown along the Italian boundary, and England granted a large Italian loan. True, negotiations between Rome and Vienna and Berlin continued busily and at times hopelessly, as appearances went, up to the very verge of Italy's announced decision; but all the while the Italian army was being mobilized and recruited and drilled and every stage of Italian affairs was being put in war order. When the decisive step was taken, all was in readiness.

"Upon returning to Rome after a fairly comprehensive tour," writes Herbert Corey, "I find the chief impression left upon my mind is that of the complete preparedness of Italy. Every possible contingency, so far as a stranger can see, has been provided against; nothing has been left to chance." This is evidenced not in the army and navy alone but also in the simplest details of economic affairs.

"One need pay but half one's rent, for example, though the arrears must be made up in full after the war. The exportation of every article of food has long been prohibited. A list of improved prices of food is published, and a merchant who sought to sell at a price higher than the one officially fixed would find himself in deep very quickly. Long before a gun had been fired, public buildings had been set aside for hospitals, and fairly well equipped. Funds had been established for the support of war orphans long before an orphan had been created."

In these conditions of thorough preparedness, are seen the fruits of Italy's calculated delay. Twelve months ago the Italian army, then numbering barely two corps, was unequipped for an important campaign. It lacked munitions as well as men, and in a clash with serious opposition would have been greatly at a disadvantage. So, too, with the navy. The interval of diplomatic parleying was turned to valuable account in supplying these shortages, so that upon finally entering the war Italy was primed in every detail.

The progress of the Italian forces has not been swift or overwhelming, but it has been steady and substantial, so much so, indeed, that it is expected that Italy now may be content with holding what she has won in the enemy's territory and send half a million or more men to the Dardanelles.

We are beginning to feel that German assurances of the safety of passenger steamers are mere scraps of paper.

A Trumpet Call to Georgia.

"The law-abiding people of Georgia, who constitute the great mass of its citizenship, will not be silent or indifferent when confronted by an issue like this. What we are dealing with is anarchy in its most dangerous form. If it continues one man's life will be safe. Today the mob claims one victim for one cause; tomorrow, unless this lawless spirit is curbed, a larger mob will claim a hundred lives on some other pretext. This spirit must be crushed with relentless determination. Therefore, we call upon the Governor and all officers of the land, to use all the power of the State to bring the guilty parties to justice."

There are courage and wisdom and patriotism behind these words from the resolutions adopted Thursday by the directors of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. They bespeak the thought and conscience of all Georgians who are devoted truly and intelligently to their Commonwealth. They ought to be indorsed openly and supported earnestly by every commercial and civic body in the State. When the issue is drawn so clearly as now between government and anarchy, between the reign of law and the rule of mobs no organization that stands for the progress and well-being of Georgia can afford to be silent or passive.

This is not a matter to be settled by the sneers and abuse of the northern press or by the counsel of self-righteous critics in any corner of the Union. It is a matter to be settled by the moral sense and determination of the people of Georgia themselves. It is our shame, and our problem and, above all, our opportunity to vindicate our good name and put down unspeakable perils. If the spirit in which the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has spoken is expressed by every chamber of commerce and every board of trade in the State and is put into practice by responsible authorities, Georgia will shine before the world in her true light and as her true self.

There was never a time when good citizenship had a more insistent and solemn call to duty. Here is a chance to render the State everlasting service. Whoever now speaks for law against lawlessness speaks for the profoundest interest of the individual and the community. Whoever now acts for law against lawlessness acts for the most precious and most vital things our civilization has bequeathed us. If mob murder goes unrebuked and unpunished, if mob vengeance is allowed to batter down all bulwarks of justice, and mob madness to defy all principles of government, no man's property and no man's life will be safe. In justice to himself as well as to his State, every upright citizen of Georgia should face this issue squarely, and speak and act as wisdom and duty demand.

"A little fire is quickly trodden out, Which, being suffered, rivers cannot quench."

The mob frenzy manifested this week in Georgia is alarming indeed, but it can be stamped out by the thoughtful people of the State and the responsible officers of the State determine now that it shall be stamped out. Otherwise, Heaven forbid the limits to which the murderous flames may sweep.

The Chamber of Commerce resolutions sound a trumpet note, when they declare:

"We call upon all true and brave Georgians to lift up their voices in denunciation of this foul crime and its perpetrators. Let every man who is on the side of law and order, giving no countenance to truckling demagogues who lift up their voices for anarchy and lawlessness, let every man stand ready to support and actively aid the officers of the law in stamping out the mob spirit wherever it is found."

To this patriotic call, every good citizen and every representative body in the State should respond. There should be a determined and organized effort to see that justice is done at this time in order that justice may be secure hereafter. The Governor should be sustained in his every purpose to redeem the State's integrity and to protect its well-being; and all other officials should be urged to exert themselves unsparringly to the same high end. Let us confront secretly organized lawlessness with publicly organized conscience, and lawlessness will be crushed.

Rapid advances, none of your crawling, on the River Bug.

The Germans run a great risk getting so far into Russia away from the rear base.

The Emperor Francis Joseph has celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday, showing that it is possible for a man to live to a great age although in the midst of war.

Don't call him a spider, because he isn't. Spiders bite and have poison glands. This insect is perfectly harmless. It isn't just pleasant to have one of them crawl up your arm or down your neck, but you're just as safe as when he isn't there—ten times safer than the ground where he walks. He also has two eyes and two antennae, which you will see if you examine him closely. From midsummer to late autumn, spiders are long-legged scampers about over rocks, tree trunks, etc. in the picnic marmalade in the park, crawls up the fisherman's neck along the stream, collects in barns and has a general good time. Few of them survive the winter.—Philadelphia North American.

Teeth Affect Morality.

By H. ADDINGTON BAUGH.

THE hygienic importance of keeping the teeth well cleaned is appreciated today by most people. Thanks are largely due to the toothbrush campaign carried on by school authorities. Not so generally appreciated is the fact that tooth decay sometimes has a disastrous effect, not only on the body, but also on the mind and the morals.

Some striking instances as has ever come to my knowledge of the influence of diseased teeth on morality, is the story of a Cleveland young man, for instance, who was charged with a singular case of immorality to the late Dr. Henry S. Upson.

Brought up in a good home, this young man, as a boy, showed no traits out of the ordinary. Until about fifteen he behaved much like any average, vigorous lad.

At fifteen his mother was startled and dismayed by a sudden change in his character. He became mischievous, unruly, and given to roaming the streets. Some neighbors began to complain of him. He was accused of taking one person's bicycle to pieces, of stealing another's milk bottles, of overturning peddler's carts.

Next he started in earnest in a criminal career, breaking into Y. M. C. A. lockers, pilfering from barns, and finally robbing a store. Arrested, but released for lack of evidence, he promptly committed another burglary.

This earned him a two-year term in the Ohio state reformatory. He was no sooner freed than he turned burglar again, and this time was sent to the local prison.

There he remained until he was twenty-one, when his mother, in a last desperate effort to save her boy, begged to Dr. Upson to make a medical examination of him.

It was her idea, from a recent reading of medical literature, that possibly some abnormal physical condition might be responsible for his delinquency.

Visiting the prison, Dr. Upson was at once impressed by the deplorable state of the young man's teeth. Several were impacted—that is, crowded against the others, and his gums were inflamed and revealed abscesses at the roots of several others.

Given dental treatment a great improvement in his behavior became apparent. He lost his silliness and restlessness, and his return to his mother's home sought work and kept at it steadily.

A year later the mother was able to write to Dr. Upson a letter of grateful assurance that her son's conduct was lasting.

How account for this strange effect of dental disease of character?

Simply by the fact that the young man's brain had been poisoned by the products of tooth decay. As absorbed into the blood, these products had been carried by the blood of the brain.

Also his whole nervous system had been unduly taxed by the prolonged pressure of the impacted teeth against the teeth adjacent to them.

The poisoning of the brain had weakened his powers of reason and judgment. The nervous strain had caused restlessness, which in his case took the form of an abnormal revolt against mental and moral discipline.

He was not really a criminal. He was merely the victim of a "toothache," hence amenable to reformatory influences once the cause of the neurosis had been ascertained and removed.

Nevertheless, until it had been found and removed, he was a real menace to society.

As with him, so with not a few other evil-doers, whose criminal or vicious habits have demonstrably been caused by tooth decay.

Use the toothbrush vigorously therefore in the interest of morality as well as of physical health.

The Journal's Letter Box

Editor Journal: Lord Kitchener, head of the English army, declared last August for a three years' war. It was known all last fall that the allies could prevent it, no cotton would be permitted to go to Germany or Austria. It was known for a fact.

We faced a most grave condition last fall. The world was aroused to the seriousness of it. The "Buy-A-Bale" movement disclosed to every section the situation.

It developed a great wave of humanity; creditors from all over the world rushed to the rescue of the south and the southern creditors met the emergency in a spirit of patience and indulgence never to be forgotten.

How many millions of words were lettered to impress upon the south the absolute necessity to reduce the cotton crop to half one-half! The highest officers in the United States government, in the states and everywhere told us what disasters would follow probably the making of more than seven or eight million bales this year. Mr. Harvie Jordan and several legislatures advocated no cotton at all this year. Thousands of newspaper editors devoted columns after columns to urging a radical reduction in the crop. Let the international question between the United States and the allies as to contraband of war be what it may, and let us satisfy our consciences by settling it right.

Once more we open the campaign and throw out to the south the old slogan "Live at Home." Preach to the farmers and the people, and let us neglect to grow wheat you are no farmer. Do you neglect to grow abundance of foodstuff of every character, cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, corn, potatoes, cane, peas, alfalfa, hay of all kinds, fruits and vegetables, and a little cotton, friends just what you can make after looking after the others of more vital importance.

You know this is the time when we at all times, but in the face of this war in the world your other course will be industrial suicide in the south of our country.

Washington, Ga., August 16, 1915.

Editor The Journal: I have been told years since, the old Cone hotel in Milledgeville, served as a refuge for George Washington, also Lafayette when they visited Georgia's capital early after the Revolutionary war. I was in Milledgeville last winter and saw the old house which seemed tenacious and doubtless well raised or long unless the legislature comes to the rescue. It fronts on the military school campus of 12 acres. It could be remodelled and made useful as well as valuable for its reminiscent history. Doubtless if we could read some of the stories told on its long porch by Toombs, Jenkins, Johnson and others, it would be easy to raise several thousand dollars to preserve it. What has become of Georgia's historical society?

The Searchlight.

A concrete swimming tank is one of the latest additions to the modern ranch. In the southeast, providing the swimming holes so much enjoyed by the farmers' boys of the east are few and unreliable, being apt to run dry at the very time when swimming is most desirable. A number of western ranches have equipped tanks which are filled with water supplied by irrigation. The water is pumped into the tank from each day and is drawn off into the ditches as needed for the different fields.

A tank of this kind on a large ranch near Tucson, Ariz., is the scene of frequent merry parties of young people. It is an oval, covered with a canvas top, at one end only three feet for the water, the rest of the tank is filled with water. The water is supplied by a pump, and the tank is filled with water each day and is drawn off into the ditches as needed for the different fields.

THE DANGEROUS FOLLY OF AN EMBARGO

THE New York Commercial would like to see our commerce with all countries, including the Teutonic allies, freed from all restrictions. It cannot believe that Senator Smith's plan is feasible. Moreover, it appears certain that such an embargo would ruin us by wiping out the greatest and most profitable export trade we have ever enjoyed.

If Senator Smith can show the people, the president and congress how our export trade can be increased without the loss of the world's largest market, a material part of it, the Commercial will gladly assist in the good work to the best of its ability. Unfortunately, Senator Smith's speeches and interviews are full of mistakes and the old fallacies of "The Dog and the Bone" and "Killing the Goose that Laid the Golden Egg." Our exports during the last fiscal year were the largest in our history and promise to be still larger in the current fiscal year. The balance of trade in our favor composed of the excess of exports over imports amounted to more than a billion dollars, a sum never before approached in the history of this or any other country. The greater part of this vast gain in export trade went into the pockets of the farmers and was this winter surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis. The federal reserve board has devoted special attention to preparations for financing the cotton surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis. The federal reserve board has devoted special attention to preparations for financing the cotton surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis.

It is unfortunate that southern cotton planters did not share in the bounties received by farmers who raised live stock and poultry. The loss of the world's largest market of cotton was surprisingly large, the decrease as compared with the previous crop year being only about 4 per cent. The price of cotton was very low in the early part of the crop year and the carry-over is large on account of the sensational size of the crop. As the rate of consumption seems to be increasing in spite of the war, proper financial action should be taken to meet the demand. It is useless to disguise the fact that cotton planters are not as fortunately placed as grain farmers and stock raisers. The embargo upon the cotton trade is a disaster to them. It is a year ago. It therefore remains for the cotton planters to consider where they would land if Senator Smith's embargo was declared. Congress will be forced to consider the cotton trade as a whole and leave cotton free for export. The embargo must be general, as even Senator Smith admits. be worth five cents a pound. Grain farmers and live stock raisers would at least have enough to eat, but cotton is the main food for men or beasts. WAR AND NONRESISTANCE

In an old-time reading book there was a moral tale about an invading army and a country that refused to fight. The soldiers upon the scene with all the pomp and circumstance of war, and are amazed to find only sober, industrious civilians tranquilly at work. "But where is your army?" they demand, and when they learn that there is no army they go home disappointed. That story had a great vogue in the school room before the Civil war, and of late we have been looking forward to making a profit out of cotton even if the acreage is larger than wildland and it can sell its increased output of other staple crops at remunerative prices.

It is useless to disguise the fact that cotton planters are not as fortunately placed as grain farmers and stock raisers. The embargo upon the cotton trade is a disaster to them. It is a year ago. It therefore remains for the cotton planters to consider where they would land if Senator Smith's embargo was declared. With an embargo on cotton exports to the allies cotton would not be worth five cents a pound. Grain farmers and live stock raisers would at least have enough to eat, but cotton is the main food for men or beasts. The embargo would ruin our commerce with all countries, including the Teutonic allies, freed from all restrictions. It cannot believe that Senator Smith's plan is feasible. Moreover, it appears certain that such an embargo would ruin us by wiping out the greatest and most profitable export trade we have ever enjoyed.

If Senator Smith can show the people, the president and congress how our export trade can be increased without the loss of the world's largest market, a material part of it, the Commercial will gladly assist in the good work to the best of its ability. Unfortunately, Senator Smith's speeches and interviews are full of mistakes and the old fallacies of "The Dog and the Bone" and "Killing the Goose that Laid the Golden Egg." Our exports during the last fiscal year were the largest in our history and promise to be still larger in the current fiscal year. The balance of trade in our favor composed of the excess of exports over imports amounted to more than a billion dollars, a sum never before approached in the history of this or any other country. The greater part of this vast gain in export trade went into the pockets of the farmers and was this winter surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis. The federal reserve board has devoted special attention to preparations for financing the cotton surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis.

It is unfortunate that southern cotton planters did not share in the bounties received by farmers who raised live stock and poultry. The loss of the world's largest market of cotton was surprisingly large, the decrease as compared with the previous crop year being only about 4 per cent. The price of cotton was very low in the early part of the crop year and the carry-over is large on account of the sensational size of the crop. As the rate of consumption seems to be increasing in spite of the war, proper financial action should be taken to meet the demand. The federal reserve board has devoted special attention to preparations for financing the cotton surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis. The federal reserve board has devoted special attention to preparations for financing the cotton surplus and the new crop should put cotton on a paying basis.

It is useless to disguise the fact that cotton planters are not as fortunately placed as grain farmers and stock raisers. The embargo upon the cotton trade is a disaster to them. It is a year ago. It therefore remains for the cotton planters to consider where they would land if Senator Smith's embargo was declared. Congress will be forced to consider the cotton trade as a whole and leave cotton free for export. The embargo must be general, as even Senator Smith admits. With an embargo on cotton exports to the allies cotton would not be worth five cents a pound. Grain farmers and live stock raisers would at least have enough to eat, but cotton is the main food for men or beasts. The embargo would ruin our commerce with all countries, including the Teutonic allies, freed from all restrictions. It cannot believe that Senator Smith's plan is feasible. BEAVERS' COURT FIGHT CANNOT LAST BUT YEAR

So Say Attorneys for Ex-Chief as Petition for Writ Is Sanctioned

Judge John T. Pendleton, of the Fulton superior court, Friday morning sanctioned a writ of certiorari in the case of James L. Beavers against the board of police commissioners. The action of Judge Pendleton means that the trial of Beavers by the police board, resulting in his demotion to the rank of captain and causing his retirement from the force, will be reviewed by the superior court.

Unless the police board takes issue with the allegations of fact set forth in the Beavers petition for writ, the case will be heard and decided by one of the judges of the Fulton superior court. If, however, the accuracy of the facts in the petition are questioned by the police board, then the issue thus made will be submitted to a jury for determination.

Attorneys for Beavers stated Friday morning that within a year's time at the very outside the case will have been adjudicated by the courts, even if it goes to the state supreme court. They expressed every confidence that Beavers would win.

"If the courts sustain our contention, as we confidently believe they will, the proceeding which we will institute on Monday morning will result in sending the case back to the police board for retrial," explained Attorney Key. "Mr. Beavers will be restored to his former position as chief of police, suspended, and retrial by the police board, however it may be constituted at that time and whoever may compose its personnel."

Although the civil service law regulating the police department provides that a decision of the police board shall be final, attorneys for Chief Beavers contend that the courts will annul the police board's decision. They point to the 135 Ga. in the case of Tibbe vs. the City of Atlanta in which the supreme court held that a judgment of the board of police commissioners is subject to review by writ of certiorari. Accompanying the Beavers' petition, is the stenographic report of the evidence taken by the police commission in the trial of the former chief. This evidence covers 123 written pages, which cost Beavers $200.

The petition itself covers ten typewritten pages, in which the following are some of the chief allegations:

1. The judgment of the police board is contrary to law, contrary to evidence, against the greater weight of the evidence, and without evidence to support it.
2. The police board erred in overruling the demerit and objection to the charges preferred against Beavers.
3. The board permitted Edwin P. Johnson, one of its members, and an ex-officio counselman, to employ counsel to represent the prosecution of the case, to examine witnesses, to argue demerits, etc., over objections of other members of the board and over the objection of Beavers.

4. Edwin P. Johnson participated in the trial and in the findings of the verdict, being one of the commissioners who voted for removal of Beavers.
5. The board admitted evidence of alleged insubordination which occurred after the charges had been formally presented and after Beavers had been suspended as chief of police.

6. Chairman Fain ruled out of order a question seeking to show who employed Charles T. Hopkins, an attorney in the case.

7. The trial was stopped before defendant was ready, and while he was still in the act of introducing evidence in his defense.
8. After the trial had been concluded and the board had retired to make its judgment and verdict, the vote stood six for removal and six against it, and the defendant contends that this result prevented his removal from the position of chief. The petition recites the facts surrounding the all-night session of the board, its adjournment the following morning, and its meeting again that afternoon.

9. "The motion having been put to remove him as chief of police, and there not being a majority of the board in favor of that motion," says the petition, "and the board having adjourned to a subsequent time, the result of this action was to restore him to his position because of the failure of the motion and because the subsequent vote removing him was illegal and void."

BANKERS ARE AGAINST PROHIBITION IN CALL

Pass Resolutions Asking Governor Not to Include
Measure in Call

The Atlanta Clearing House association has passed resolutions urging Governor N. E. Harris not to include prohibition in his call for the extra session of the legislature, which extra session is made necessary by the failure of the legislature at its recent session to pass a general appropriation bill.

A copy of the resolutions has been transmitted to the governor by the president of the association, John K. Otley. The resolutions read as follows:

"Whereas, it is imperative that an extra session of the legislature be called at an early date; and

"Whereas, the governor of the state is uncertain whether to include prohibition in his call; therefore

"Be it resolved, That it is not a question whether prohibition for prohibition or against the same---it is a question solely that it would be unwise to precipitate a long and lengthy discussion in the legislature that would be expensive to the taxpayers and interfere with business and be productive of no good results; and

"Be it resolved, That the Atlanta Clearing House association respectfully requests Governor Harris not to include the subject of prohibition in his call for the extraordinary session of the legislature."

Governor Harris expects to announce next week the date he has fixed for the legislature to convene in extra session and his decision as to the subjects to be included in his call.

John H. Hickman, of Richmond, Va., arrived in Atlanta Friday to take charge of the Forsyth theater, which will be opened on Monday, August 30, with the same type of shows which it has presented for several years.

Mr. Hickman, who has been with the Lake Wells Intire for eighteen years, has a number of friends in Atlanta, for he was here eight years ago, in charge of the Bijou theater and the Ponce de Leon Casino. He has recently been in charge of the Wells theaters in Nashville.

Horace Herring, who was assistant of the Forsyth theater, office last season, will be the treasurer.

No plans have yet been announced for the season at the Lyric theater. The Grand will continue to present feature motion pictures. The Old Orpheum will remain dark. The Atlanta theater opens on September 6 with Tim Murphy in a new comedy.

RECALL ADVOCATES MEET IN SECOND WARD SCHOOL

A meeting in the interest of the movement to recall the seven members of the board of police commissioners who voted to demote Chief James L. Beavers, was held at the Georgia avenue school house in the Second ward Thursday evening and was attended by nearly 100 citizens.

One of the principal speakers was Alderman C. H. Kelley. In the course of his talk Mr. Kelley declared that Atlanta will never be restored to her former supremacy among the great cities of the nation until there is a change in the head of the city administration. Other speakers were Leonard J. Grossman and Walter M. Elmer, Robert J. Shropshire and C. T. Register, president of the Second ward club.

TODAY'S EVENING
STORYTHREE IN A CAR
(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)

It was a very wonderful morning, indeed, and Hetty having sent her father well brushed and fed to his day's work, had hurried through the dishwashing, bedmaking, sweeping and dusting that she might have three hours of glorious freedom—darning hose—behind the vines on the little front porch.

She was humming softly to herself when she heard the purr of wheels, and, peeping out, saw a shining immaculate car slowing down at the Millard curb. Out of the car sprang a tall, dark young man in motor coat and cap, who ran up the steps with his eyes eagerly upon the front door. Before he had quite reached the top of the steps the door opened and out stepped the most beautiful girl of all.

At least that was what Hetty always called Inez Millard in her own mind. For Inez was all things Hetty was not, being tall, full fashioned, with a great mass of light hair, blue eyes and a skin that made one think of pearls and flowers. Besides, Inez had exquisite clothes and nothing to do but to make herself as beautiful as she could.

On this morning Inez wore blue silk stockings to match her shoes and her linen gown. She had been up perhaps half an hour, had just finished her breakfast and looked charming. Hetty could see that Roscoe Marshall was full of admiration. She sighed faintly. How nice it must seem to have a handsome young lawyer like Roscoe Marshall to come on purpose to take one out for a drive on a fine morning when everything was as young as one's self. Then resolutely she ceased watching and applied herself to her darning.

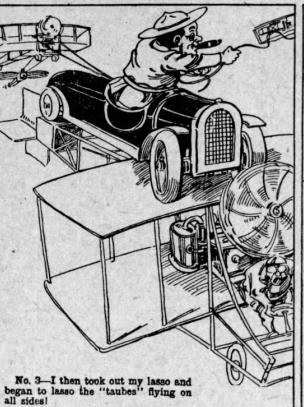

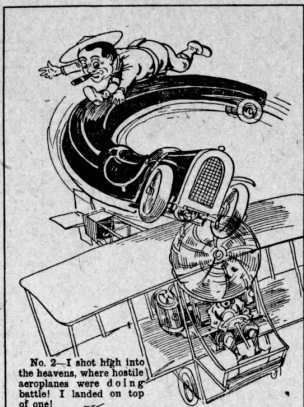

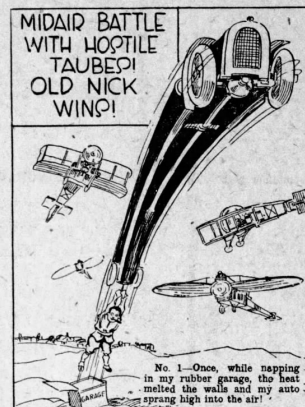

A moment later the vines were pulled apart and Inez Millard's face looked in. "Hetty," she commanded, "go get ready and come with me. Don't wait to change your dress. Just snatch your coat and hat and come. Roscoe Marshall has come to take me out to Sapphire Lake for lunch, and mother's down with a sick headache, and she says I can't go without a third person. Mother's so awfully old-fashioned in her ideas. But it is all right, she says, if you'll go along. So you must."

"Oh, Inez!" Hetty gasped. A thousand things raced through her mind as she stood up and began to plunge her darning into the basket. She was thinking, "Father can get his own lunch. There's bread and cold meat and pie. I'll leave a note pinned to the tablecloth. And I haven't been in a car all the

HARRIS TO URGE COURT PUNISH LYNCHERS

Governor to Confer With Judges, Solicitors and Sheriffs of Baldwin and Cobb

Governor Harris stated Friday that he will request the judges, solicitors and sheriffs of Baldwin and Cobb counties to call upon him in his office for the purpose of urging them to exert their utmost efforts to bring to justice the members of the mob that removed Leo M. Frank from the state prison farm at Milledgeville, last Monday night, carried him more than 100 miles in automobiles to a point near Marietta, and hanged him to the limb of a tree.

"I will ask the judges to charge the grand juries especially on this subject, and will ask the solicitors to make every effort to ascertain the guilty party, and will ask the sheriffs to cooperate fully with the solicitors and judges," said the governor.

The lynching of Frank was a blot upon the fair name of our state that can never be erased unless the guilty men are punished to the limit of the law.

The governor explained that Baldwin and Cobb are the counties selected for the reason that Milledgeville, in Baldwin county, is where the removal of the prisoner from the prison took place, and that the spot where Frank was hanged, in Cobb county, is the location of the taking of Frank's life by the mob.

The governor late Thursday afternoon issued a statement to the public concerning the lynching of Frank and issued a reward of $500 each for the apprehension of any three members of the mob, making the total reward $1,500. It was the governor's intention to offer five rewards of $100 each, making a total of $500, but on account of the order of rewards already offered he found that the total is $7,500, and inasmuch as the total amount of the reward is $1,500, the governor felt that $1,500 was the limit he could offer in the Frank lynching.

LANGUAGE OF REWARD.

The governor's reward proclamation deals with the lynching in very strong language. It says: "Whereas, official information has been received at this department that on the night of August 15, 1915, in this state, one Leo M. Frank, a prisoner, held in custody of the state, was violently taken from the hospital of the state penitentiary in Baldwin county, and found dead in the county of Cobb on the morning of August 17, 1915, having met his death at the hands of unknown parties; and, whereas, such conduct in such transactions are still unknown and unapprehended; and, whereas, such conduct is an attack upon our civilization, besides being a gross violation of law, which the dignity of the state and the good name of her people require to be fully investigated and the offenders brought to punishment; therefore, That the secretary of state record and issue a proclamation offering a reward of $500 each for the first three persons convicted of said offense, for their apprehension and delivery to the sheriff of Baldwin or Cobb county, with evidence sufficient to convict."

(Signed) N. E. HARRIS, Governor.

By the Governor: RAYMOND STAPLETON, Secretary Executive Department.

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT.

Governor Harris' statement is in full as follows: "In view of the great interest felt in all matters pertaining to the lynching of the prisoner Frank, I have thought it well to make a statement to the public, explaining, as far as I can, the facts that led up to the transaction, and the situation that made it possible."

"Under the laws of Georgia, all alleged male convicts are sentenced and worked on the chain gangs of the different counties, or the public works of the state."

"There is a state farm at Milledgeville, primarily intended for the broken down convicts; those who are sickly and unable to do service on the roads; for all female convicts, and for all boys not over 16 years of age."

"The prison commission may direct some convicts sent to the farm whose services can be utilized in the office, or do other work, but generally these convicts are kept upon the roads of the several counties, as long as they are able to perform the work required of them. Sometimes the trial judges sentence a prisoner to the state farm, in order to avoid hardships of the county chain gang. This can be done by the presiding judge."

"There are some eight hundred prisoners on the state farm, counting the women, boys and other prisoners."

"When Mr. Frank's sentence was commuted by Governor Stephens to the state farm for the purpose of being delivered to the prison commission at that point. He could have been sent by the commission to one of the county chain gangs of the state, or he could have been sent to the prison, in the discretion of the commission."

ACTION NOT SAFE.

"The excitement which attended his entrance to the prison was such that no disposition that would send him away from it seemed safe or advisable."

"After events have shown, there was really no gang in Georgia where he would have been secure. He was kept at work, therefore, in the prison as other prisoners, awaiting any other disposition that might be found advisable."

"The state penitentiary, as it is called, was never built with the idea of preventing an attack from the outside."

"Any determined body of men would be able to effect an entrance, if such an attempt was decided upon."

"There was no stockade around the prison; only a wire fence. It was found out at the time of the attack, and could have easily been penetrated at any point."

"The vast building was full of windows, both in the basement and main story. It was like a dormitory; one great sleeping apartment, the prisoners working out upon the farm in day and occupying the sleeping dormitory at night. The cots stood side by side, in easy proximity. This method of taking care of the prisoners at night has been found to be the healthiest in the south."

Said "I WAS WRONG."

"When I asked the legislature at their recent session to appropriate money to use in building a stockade cell for the prison farm, some newspapers took up the matter, and contended with much vehemence that it was wrong."

"In my consultation with the prison commission over Mr. Frank, we thought of the need of more guards, more wardens. But the idea was that these were not needed, but that the prisoners, from hurting him. I felt that there was too much exposure in letting the prisoners all sleep together in the same great room, but the outside attack was not thought of in this. Such danger was thought to be very small after the first month. It was believed that, if a prison guard could not attack a party in check lock, the prisoners could be protected. The county authorities were close at hand, and there was one of the best military companies in the state within two miles of the prison. This company, while the militia in Macon, had been directed by the adjutant general to keep in readiness for immediate service, if called on.

"The complete secrecy of the movement, the careful preparation of every detail, the cutting of the telephone wires, the cutting of the telegraph wires, prevented any expected assistance, and enabled the attack to succeed."

"There is no provision of law for keeping a military guard over the state farm. This would be impossible under our existing statute, as the governor cannot use the military unless the civil authorities first request it."

"Under our constitution the civil authority is the superior to the military, and still it is only by the consent of the soldiers can take charge."

MUST CONSULT AUTHORITIES.

"I would have called out the militia to prevent an invasion of the state's property, but even in such a case it is considered necessary to consult the civil authorities first, and simply use the militia in order to carry out the order."

"Some four weeks ago I received an alarm in the form of a secret message to the effect that the mob intended to storm the prison and lynch Frank on a certain night. I at once telephoned the authorities in charge, including the prison commission, the warden at the county, the sheriff of Baldwin county, and Captain Knott, the Baldwin Rifles. I secured the proper release of the civil authorities, and immediately had General Nash to get in readiness to handle any local situation that might arise, and Captain Ennis was directed to call his men to the armory, prepared to go to the state farm at once. The Macon military was also put under arms."

"I incurred considerable censure, for the alarm seemed to be entirely unfounded, and the people most concerned felt that I had done them an injustice, even threatening to call an indignation meeting to protest against the course I had adopted."

"It has come to light since the result of Monday night's work that my prompt action in this matter delayed the lynching of the prisoner for a few minutes, the mob coming in from a few miles of Milledgeville, and hearing of the preparation, decided to postpone the attack."

"On Monday night the militia would have been called out, had the request been made in time. It seems that the mob went to the prison at about 10 o'clock in the night, knew of the occurrence until about 1:45 Tuesday morning, when I was called over the telephone by a Constable's reporter, who stated to me that a mob had taken Frank from the prison and lynched him some time between 10 and 11 o'clock that night. I was shocked beyond measure."

LINES WERE DOWN.

"I was working through five days following the legislature's adjournment, reading and signing bills, with a suspension, night or day, the whole five days, and was completely exhausted. Nevertheless, immediate action was made to get in communication with the sheriff of Baldwin county, but the lines were down, no information could be obtained. The sheriffs in several counties along the route which it was believed the mob was traveling were notified to keep a sharp lookout for the party. The sheriffs of Putnam, Morgan, Newton, Rockdale, Fulton and Cobb were notified."

"It is now understood, however, from the subsequent events, that the party with Frank had passed north about an hour and a half before the county authorities on the road were reached. Near daylight I was called by Colonel Isaac, one of the lawyers of Frank, who stated that he had just received a message to the effect that Frank was lynched between Milledgeville and Marietta, and said that an agent of the Central of Georgia railroad at some point had given him this information."

"I had an engagement to go to Fitzgerald at 6 o'clock, however, I turned again to telephone and found that it was generally believed that the prisoner had been lynched some time before, and so I finally decided to go on to Fitzgerald, directing my secretaries to keep in touch with me all the way over the road, so that should the occasion arise, I might issue any necessary orders by stantler. Adjutant General Nash had been duly notified and was ready to appropriate steps to control the militia if the word had been received."

THEY THOUGHT BEST.

"The public is advised of the unfortunate and tragic result."

"I have found on inquiry of the prison commission that Frank was still in the hospital, confined to the single room where he had been kept since the attempt upon his life by William Green. He had not been taken to the common quarters, but was in confinement in the hospital, though, under the same roof with the prison, is separated from

by partitions and passageways extending through the building. "There is no man in the bounds of the state that regards more deeply to me, and bring to all in my power to discover and bring to justice the perpetrators, believing that the people at large do so. I am especially distressed to me, because the attack was made upon the county authorities, who were not in a vain attempt to elude newspaper men and photographers."

Frank's Body Is Buried at Mount Carmel, Brooklyn

Leo M. Frank, who was lynched near Marietta, Ga., was buried in Mount Carmel cemetery, Brooklyn. The automobile hearse and the cars carrying the immediate relatives of the dead man traveled at a high rate of speed over the 200-mile route from the home of Frank's parents to the cemetery in a vain attempt to elude newspaper men and photographers.

Frank's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Frank; the widow and Frank's sister, Mrs. Otto Stern and her husband, occupied the automobile that followed the hearse. A dozen other relatives and friends of the family were also in automobiles. A crowd of scarcely more than 100 people was in front of the Frank home when the body was carried out at 9:10 o'clock. Twenty minutes later the hearse arrived at the cemetery, and ten minutes after that the last burial services were concluded. About forty curious persons were in the cemetery when Frank's body arrived, and they crowded close to the grave during the services.

Perfect order was maintained both at the Frank home and at the cemetery, and the police at both places found nothing to do.

Mrs. Lucille Frank, the widow, appeared calm and restrained until the burial services had concluded. Then she collapsed, and was carried to an automobile. The services were conducted by Rabbi David Marx, of Atlanta.

$20,000 In Reward Will Be Offered

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Lester Bann, of Chicago, chairman of the committee which was active in obtaining a commutation of Frank's sentence, announced today that $15,000 of a proposed $20,000 reward for the apprehension of the members of the mob that lynched Frank, had been raised.

"The reward," said Mr. Bann, "will be not only for arrest and conviction of the guilty persons, but will be split up over identification of any one or all of them. We will go further. Anyone of the slayers of Frank who will turn state's evidence may earn a portion of the reward. In addition, there will be a separate reward for unquestionable evidence as to where and how Frank was killed. We are by no means certain that Frank was not murdered before he was taken from his cell by the mob."

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 20.—A group of oak tree near the W. F. J. cotton gin, two miles from here, on which the lifeless body of Leo M. Parties for Dinner Dance

The dinner dance at the Piedmont club will be an enjoyable event of Saturday evening, and several large parties have been arranged for the occasion.

Among those entertaining will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greer, Mr. and Mrs. John McKee, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Williams and Mr. Charles H. Godfrey.

To Miss Amorous

Miss Emmakathryn Adams, whose marriage to Mr. Carl Gustave Vrethman will be celebrated on Saturday, September 12, will be the honor guest at series of parties.

The first of these affairs will be the wedding luncheon at which Miss Frances Adams will be hostess Thursday, August 26, at her home on East Fifteenth street, at which time twelve guests will be entertained.

Guests at Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Thornwell Jacobs entertained at the third of a series of dinner parties Thursday evening, at their home in Lakely Park, in compliment to their guests, Mr. and Mrs. William States Jacobs, and Mr. William States Jacobs, Jr. of Houston.

A graceful fountain edged with nasturtiums around which fluttered butterflies and birds of bright plumage, graced the central decoration of the dinner table, and the dainty place cards were hand-painted ladies' heads.

The hostess was dressed in black with bodice of black chiffon edged in gold, and the honor guest wore a pretty model in blue satin.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. William States Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, Mr. and Mrs. William Hurd Hill, Mrs. J. M. High, Miss Dorothy High, Mr. Edgar Williams, of Wayne, Okla., and Mr. William States Jacobs, Jr. of Houston.

Pretty Birthday Party

A bright event of Thursday afternoon was the children's party given by Mrs. W. E. Gaines at her home on North Jackson street in celebration of the third birthday of her little son, Alvin Morrell Gaines.

Merry games were a feature of the afternoon very much enjoyed by the little folks in which pretty prizes were given. In the dining room the birthday cake on which burned three tiny tapers rested in a mound of golden glow and ferns and the guests for each little guest included a toy whistle and doll. A number of little children enjoyed the pleasant occasion.

Argentine Club Dance

The members of the Argentine club will give a dance Friday evening at their club rooms in West End.

Spend-the-Day Party

Mrs. L. G. Solar was hostess at a spend-the-day party Thursday at her home on East North avenue in compliment to Mrs. H. J. Serrell, of Birmingham.

Invited to meet the honor guest were Mrs. Dick Beard, Mrs. Robert Mason, Mrs. Robert Haynes, Jr., of New York, Mrs. William Baldwin, Miss Dora Solar, Mrs. Robert Haynes, III, and Mr. H. J. Serrell, Jr.

Surprise Party

Miss Eleanor Bracwell was given a surprise party Wednesday evening by a number of her friends in celebration of her birthday. Following interesting games were served and informal dancing was enjoyed.

Among those present were Miss May Belle Conyers, Miss Earle Ramsey, Miss Lucile Ramsey, Miss Pauline Crawford, Miss Mabel Hardwick, Miss Minnie Lee Davies, Miss Mary Bracwell, Miss Dottie Chubb Bracwell, Miss Mabel Bracwell, Mrs. J. R. Bracwell, Mrs. W. Bracwell, Jr., Mr. Glover Tharsh, Mr. Pierce Ford, Mr. W. A. Bennett, Mr. Jordan Wilson, Mr. Robert Carroll, Mr. Allen Van Orsdale, Mr. Evans Bracwell, Mr. Fred Bracwell, Mr. Walter Bracwell, Mr. Joe Bracwell.

Luncheon to Visitors

Mrs. W. C. Wall entertained twenty guests at luncheon Thursday at her home on Courtland street, in compliment to Miss Mollie Rushing, of Madison, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mr. Braden, of Rome.

The tasteful decorations of the dining room were of pink roses and carnations and the centerpiece of the lace covered table was of the same bright flowers.

SCHOOL FOR WIVES RUN BY FORMER HELEN GOULD

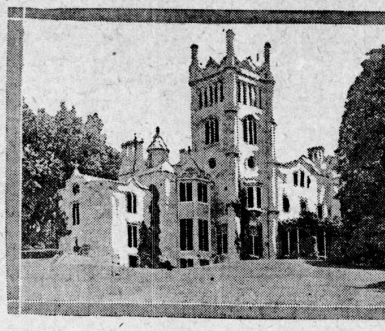

(Staff Special.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Married less than three years herself, Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, known throughout the world as Helen Gould, has established a school for wives at Lyndhurst, her country place, at Tarrytown, N. Y.

An expert housekeeper and fond of everything which pertains to home making, Mrs. Shepard has today a class of more than 400 young women who meet at Lyndhurst every Saturday morning to receive instruction in sewing, cooking and the keeping of household accounts. There is also at Lyndhurst a housekeepers' class for married women who wish to improve their household management, and instruction is given in economical buying.

Mrs. Shepard takes more pride in the fact that she can order a plain, economical dinner than in her ability to give her government in time of need $100,000 for a battleship.

An instructor from Teachers' College, New York City, addresses the cooking class every Saturday morning. Even boys are not barred from attending the cooking class.

Loves housekeeping! Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, formerly Helen Gould, and her beautiful home, Lyndhurst, at Tarrytown, N. Y., where she has established a school for wives.

ATLANTA WOMEN INTERESTED IN BETTER BABIES CONTEST

A contest for better babies will be held on Thursday, September 2, at the First Christian church. This will not be a beauty show, but will be conducted on strictly scientific lines. Lectures will be delivered by experts and practical demonstrations will be given in which mothers will be taught to recognize slight imperfections in their children and learn how through the application of scientific principles the babies may be brought to the perfect standard.

A beautifully designed bronze medal and diploma, presented by the Woman's Home Companion, will be given prize winning babies.

There will also be a popular babies' contest in which handsome photographs and solid gold pins will be given as prizes.

Rouge et Noir Dance at Roof Garden

A "Rouge et Noir" dance will be given on the roof garden of the Capital City club on Wednesday evening, August 25. The roof will present a picturesque and charming appearance with its red and black decorations and a number of surprise features will add greatly to the pleasure of the parties entertained by the members. A number of reservations have been already made and the occasion promises to be one of the very pleasant events of the mid-summer.

Dinner will be served at 7:45 and will be followed by informal dancing.

Miss Bradley Connected With New York Library

Miss Florence Bradley will leave early in September for a trip of three months through the west, visiting her mother, Dr. Frances Sage Bradley in San Francisco, and relatives in Chicago. Early in December she will return east, going to New York, where she will have an interesting winter's work as assistant to the librarian of the Tompkins Square Branch library, one of the busiest and best equipped branches of the East Side. Since 1912 Miss Bradley has been head of the circulation department of the Carnegie library of Atlanta, and her many graces and charming personality have endeared her to a wide circle of friends who will deeply regret her departure.

Rummage Sale

A rummage sale will be held at 243 Edgewood avenue Saturday for the benefit of St. Luke's church. Contributions will be gratefully received.

WAS THE SINKING OF BIG SHIP GERMANY'S REPLY TO OUR NOTE?

passengers aboard the Arabic. Sixteen have been accounted for here thus far. Captain Finch gave the Associated Press a detailed account of the loss of the liner.

"We were forty-seven miles south of Galley Head at 9:30 o'clock this morning," he said, "when I perceived the steamer Dunsley in difficulty. Going towards her I observed a torpedo coming for my ship, but could not discern a submarine. The torpedo struck one hundred feet from the stern making terrible havoc of the hull. The vessel began to settle immediately and sank in about eight minutes.

"My order from the bridge about getting the boats launched was promptly obeyed. Two boats capsized. We had taken every precaution while in the danger zone. There were plenty of life belts on decks and the boats were ready for immediate launching. The officers and crew all behaved excellently and did everything possible in the circumstances, getting people into the boats and picking up those in the sea.

"I was the last to leave, taking the plunge into the sea as the ship was going down. After being in the water some time I got aboard a raft to which I also assisted two men and women." Captain Finch paid special tribute to the heroic conduct of several engineers and firemen who remained at their posts to the last and sacrificed their lives to execute orders from the bridge, thus insuring the safety of the passengers. Among those lost was the captain's nephew.

"If I had been given a little more time by the submarine," he said regretfully, "I am satisfied I could have saved everybody."

Germany Treats U. S. Warning With Contempt; Says London

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The newspapers

comment at length on the effect the sinking of the steamer Arabic is likely to have on German-American relations. "It remains to be seen," says the Morning Telegraph, "what the civilized world will do—particularly the people of the United States, if it be proven that an American citizen has been killed. The American government already has stated its standpoint in the plainest language. Germany has treated the American statements with contempt."

The Times says: "The fact that the Arabic was outward-bound wipes away the whole web of falsehood and sophistry with which Germany sought to darken the case in its impudent and mendacious reply to the American note on the Lusitania. There can be no pretense that the Arabic was carrying ammunition."

The Daily Mail says: "Americans have been wondering why no reply has yet been returned to the note they sent Germany on July 23. The reply was given yesterday and deeds speak louder than words. There can be no doubt now as to Germany's determination to persevere in her practical course with complete indifference as to whether any American citizen is aboard ships attacked."

The Standard says: "It would seem that President Wilson can hardly ignore this cool defiance of his recent note."

British Steamer N. Y. City Sunk, Crew Is Saved

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The Swansea Leader reports that the British steamship New York City has been sunk. The crew of the vessel has been saved.

Another White Star Liner Reported Sunk by Sub.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Advisors received here today bring a report that the White Star liner Iovis has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine.

The Iovis has been employed in the Australian service. She was a vessel of 5,500 tons.

and the fatherland to the leader of the attack, General Von Beseler, and his troops."

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(Via London, Aug. 20.)—The continued advance of the German and Austro-Hungarian troops on the 15th in the movement to encircle Brest-Litovsk, as described by the correspondent of the Allgemeine Zeitung at Austrian press headquarters. The desperate resistance of the Russians was broken at many points and they were forced to retire to prepared defenses in the immediate vicinity of the fortress.

The right wing of Field Marshal von Mackensen's forces pressed forward energetically from the south. An Austro-Hungarian army corps was pushed across the Bug east of Dobrynka. Archduke Joseph Ferdinand's troops advanced from Janow and narrowed the circle. Northwest of Brest-Litovsk the Germans forced a passage across the Bug at several points.

The Russian retreat from Poland is reported to be attended by unprecedented and indescribable misery among the civil population. German officers returning to headquarters report thousands upon thousands of Poles retreating in utter want to destroyed villages. Thousands of warms and refugees block the roads from the Vistula to the Bug, mothers with children vainly seeking food.

Reports from the governments of Bessarabia, Kherson, Podolia and South Volhynia indicate that the Russians are planning to evacuate this territory soon. Harvesting and threshing are going ahead feverishly but no efforts are being made to plant winter crops.

British Submarine Grounded and Part of Crew Is Lost

LONDON, Aug. 20.—A preliminary announcement was made today that a British submarine had grounded in the sound. Fifteen members of the crew were saved.

nor wishes to see a break between the United States and Great Britain. There may be more in his method than surface indications show. To say the least, he has obtained publicity, and both the British government and President Wilson are aware of the cotton situation.

"This may lead to an even more liberal treatment of the cotton collateral by the federal reserve banks, and it may possibly induce Great Britain to offer some scheme by which the surplus cotton, or a portion of it, may be paid for and held by Great Britain."

"Personally, I believe that if Great Britain purchased two million bales this year and stored it for a year or two years it would increase in value from 15 to 25 per cent in the year or two years."

"Senator Smith has certainly, as we say in the south 'holled out loud,' and his agitation may bring about an amelioration of the cotton contraband situation."

"But, as I have said, I do not see that Great Britain's action in making cotton contraband will depress the cotton market. I see ahead less cotton and higher prices."

Let Us Come to See You

CHRIS A. RAUSCHENBERG, JR., and HENRY W. TODD are pleased to announce that they have just established an insurance agency, located in the Atlanta National Bank Building. There they will be glad to have their friends and patrons come to see them.

Twelve years' experience in the insurance business for Mr. Rauschenberg and an almost equal number of years' experience in the banking business for Mr. Todd warrants the assurance to patrons that good service and courteous attention will at all times be rendered.

In addition, patrons may be assured of prompt and equitable adjustment of any and all claims, for both Mr. Rauschenberg and Mr. Todd will give their personal attention to adjustments.

We earnestly solicit your consideration when placing insurance of any kind.
